

Getting Started with Professional Services

Technology consulting is vitally important to understand how data moves within your organization, how it is captured and how to best utilize that data. It also ensures the right systems and processes are in place to yield the greatest efficiencies.

How are your needs assessments currently conducted?

- internal staff resources
- we hire consulting firms
- we don't conduct needs assessments

We have a need for project or program management expertise. How are these needs met?

- often
- seldom
- never

User training is an important tool we employ.

- for new software rollouts
- for professional development
- for new system requirements

How is training conducted?

- onsite by internal trainers
- onsite by contracted trainers
- offsite by contracted trainers

Whether you have a need for technology consulting, expert project management, detailed business analysis, training, documentation or technical writing, TCGi's Professional Services Group can deliver exceptional results. Let us know how we can help you.
